

A CIO's points of view

Myron Hrycyk & Richard Thwaite

VERITAS™

The truth in information.

CIO Points of view

Myron Hrycyk

Interim CIO, Digital Business and IT Transformation Director

Myron is a highly experienced, IT leader with a track record of delivering digital change, business innovation and transformation. Myron is the former CIO for Severn Trent Water, where he led company's Digital Strategy including the implementation of digital customer and colleague journeys, tone of voice, promotion and supporting technology. In addition he was awarded an MBA with distinction and voted by peers in 2012, 2013 and 2014 as one of the leading CIO's in the UK

Richard Thwaite

Richard heads up Chaucer Digital within the Chaucer Consulting group.

Prior to that he spent 21 years at Ford Motor Co and was the CIO for Ford of Europe for over five years. In a later move to UBS, Richard worked five years as CIO of the Global Asset Management Division. More recently, Richard was CIO for the Metropolitan Police Service in London for 2 years where he helped transform their Technology strategy.

What concerns you the most about the potential fallout from your organization not being in compliance with the GDPR?"

Asked to all 900 respondents , Vanson Bourne Chapter 1 Report

“What concerns you most about readying your business for GDPR?”
Showing the top five concerns. Asked to all 900 respondents

Not having a way to determine which data we should save or delete based on the value of the data

42%

Delete data from our systems that may have proven useful in the future

39%

Inability to accurately identify, locate and manage personal data during an internal search

39%

Not having the right tools in place to monitor data in real time

32%

Not being prepared to protect personal data from breach, loss or damage

30%